More than 300 managers from Data General Manufacturing facilities worldwide will meet in Woodstock the week of May 20 through May 24 for the 1985 Manufacturing Management Conference.

"The Year of Implementation" is this year's conference theme as the managers meet to discuss the implementation of strategies and programs, such as Statistical Process Control and Cornfield, aimed at making Data General products the best in the industry.

The "cast" of guest speakers at this year's conference in Woodstock includes psychologist Sharon Crain who will talk on stress management, and NFL referee and educator Jim Tunney who will deliver a message on developing team spirit.

Conference highlights also will include presentations from Data General customer success stories - the United States Forest Service and the United States Olympic Committee.

In addition, Manufacturing managers will exercise their minds and bodies as they participate in a series of health workshops designed to promote better health awareness.

The conference will close with a question and answer session with Senior Vice President of Manufacturing Dave Chapman.

New Service For Repair, Exchange of Computer Parts

Data General recently introduced Spare Mail, a new mail-in repair and exchange service for spare parts used in the company's computer systems. Spare Mail service features a choice of turnaround times: rapid five-day turnaround is standard, with emergency overnight delivery and three-week economy services available as well. Each level of service provides automatic installation of the latest Engineering Change Orders (ECOs) at no additional charge, giving customers the latest enhancements in performance and reliability. Also available is a Spare Mail option that provides repair-and-return of the customer's original part at its original ECO level.

Parts exchanged or repaired are warranted by Data General for 90 days.

Spare Mail service provides a one-stop repair source for 1,520 standard Data General parts, including circuit boards, disc heads, data modules, keyboards, and many other electrical and electro-mechanical assemblies. For each part repaired/exchanged Spare Mail service charges a fixed price, which varies according to the particular part and the Spare Mail option the customer selects. The Spare Mail price includes one-way shipping prepaid from Data General to the customer.

Spare Mail service is available in the U.S. to customers - principally technical OEMs and end-users - who repair Data General equipment. For information on Spare Mail call 1-800-343-3768 between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. Eastern Standard Time or call Chris Maietta at extension 2684 in Milford.

Company Officials Meet With Colorado Governor

Data General's plans to construct a 300,000 square foot Product Repair Center in Fountain, Colorado were outlined to Colorado Governor Dick Lamm earlier this month by Frank Silkman, senior vice president of Worldwide Field Engineering, and Tony Nicoletti, vice president of Field Engineering Support Services. Governor Lamm voiced strong support for the project and offered to assist the project in every way.

"What your company is doing in the computer field is very exciting," says the governor who uses a DATA GENERAL/One personal computer for creative writing. Dick recently won a Christian Monitor short story writing award and is now working on a second book. "I am very impressed with your company and your products. We are very pleased you have chosen to expand in Colorado," he says.

Governor Lamm, whose main priority is to upgrade Colorado's educational system, lauded Data General's support for educational institutions and expressed his personal appreciation for the recent equipment donation Data General made to Colorado universities. Data General has recently given equipment donations totalling more than $320,000 to Pike's Peak Community College in Colorado Springs and the University of Southern Colorado.

Product Development Center In Durham Will House MSE

Director Joe Godbout

Data General is in the computer business to supply complete computer systems and solutions to users with a variety of applications and performance requirements. To do that, Data General offers customers a wide range of products to help meet their needs: ECLIPSE MV/Family systems, ECLIPSE system, desktop and portable computers, Advanced Operating System (AOS) and AOS/Virtual Storage (AOS/VS) operating systems, CEO Comprehensive Electronic Office software and a myriad of peripheral products.

"The compelling need for data storage is growing every day," according to Joe Godbout, director of Mass Storage Engineering (MSE). The computers of tomorrow will be judged on user-friendliness, cost and performance basis. The Peripherals group is playing a very necessary role by designing products which are in tune with the requirements of commercial, technical and federal customers.

A "Pioneer" Director

With Data General for 16 years, Joe joined the company before it became publicly held. He started as an engineer and as the company grew, he grew with it, designing controllers for tapes, disks and printers. About eight years ago he was promoted to manager of MSE and three years later Joe was promoted to director.

MSE Expands To New Development Facility In Durham

Currently five MSE departments are part of the research and development team. The departments are Advanced Technology, Systems, Disk Development, Tape Development, and Continuation Engineering. Mechanical, digital, logic firmware, servo, electro-magnetic, analog, diagnostic software engineers and technicians comprise a majority of the staff. "We also have administrative and secretarial support groups," says Joe. They soon will be relocating into a 90,000 square-foot facility in Durham, New Hampshire.

"Our new MSE lab will help us to conduct advanced research, design and produce state-of-the-art data storage products," says Joe, enthused about the expansion to the new development facility in Durham. "Having all our departments together in this ideal location will allow us to efficiently manage and control the design, manufacture and service of these products - all under one roof. We are building a top-notch lab in which to build the best products," according to Joe.

Part of the operation will move to a temporary building in Newington, New Hampshire next month, with the full force scheduled to be in the $31 million facility in Durham by June of 1986.

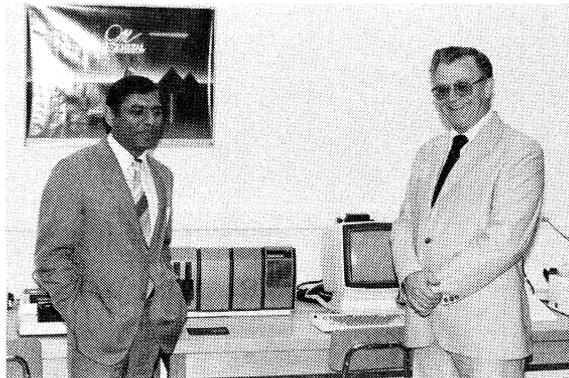

To keep Data General a generation ahead in peripherals, Joe has a simple, yet effective, formula for Mass Storage. "We must be creative with our design, yet prompt to meet schedules; imaginative yet realistic and we must be able to say with pride that we developed these products."
